New Economy Omnichannel Retailing – Key to Success

- Retailers with a physical store presence have experienced stronger online sales because physical store networks make returns/exchanges easier for consumers, while reducing re-merchandising costs¹
- Digitally native companies, including Amazon, are seeking out physical locations to create more experiential touchpoints for consumers and to address the rising cost of acquiring customers through online channels¹
- The plateauing of e-commerce's portion of overall retail sales in 2021 suggests a renewed balance between online and physical store sales¹
- The number of shoppers using buy-online-pickup-in-store (BOPIS) services “all the time” fell by a third — from 45% to 32% — last year and stands to shrink further in 2022. In-store shopping remains the dominant channel for purchases of consumer goods and looks to grow further in 2023, according to Syracuse, N.Y.-based Chase Design²

Outlook

Recession Concerns but Labour Market Remains Tight

2022 GDP Forecast: +1.7%¹

- US real GDP decreased by 0.9% q-o-q in 2Q 2022²
- Led by decreases in private inventory investment, residential fixed investment, federal government spending, state and local government spending, and nonresidential fixed investment that were partly offset by increases in exports and personal consumption expenditures²

U.S. Unemployment Rate⁴

Rising Inflation July 2022: +8.5%³

- Consumer spending has remained resilient to-date but inflation and rising interest rates have negatively impacted consumer sentiment

July 2022 Unemployment Rate returned to February 2020 Pre-Pandemic Level: 3.5%⁴

- 528,000 jobs added in July 2022 to the U.S. economy⁴, an indicator of resilience despite signs of slowing economic growth
- Job vacancies remained high at 10.7 million and well above the new hires rate at 6.4 million in June 2022⁵, indicating a continuation of the tight labour market

2Q 2022 Consumer Spending increased by 1.1% as inflation accelerated³

- Consumers are spending more at the grocery store but getting less in return as prices rise. Inflation-adjusted spending on food and beverages fell for four straight months from January to May, according to an analysis by Inflation Insights LLC, a research firm³
- Savings rates, although well below peak levels recorded during the height of the pandemic, remain elevated compared to historic averages (1991-2019). U.S. consumers continue to demonstrate buying power and pent-up demand in the face of high inflation
- June 2022 y-o-y discretionary sales² decreased by 0.1% as consumers are more cautious on non-essential spending
- July 2022 retail sales excluding a price-induced drop in gas station receipts and a drop in motor vehicle purchases rose a better-than-expected 0.7% month-on-month¹

1. U.S. Census Bureau.

2. Discretionary sales include furniture and home furnishing stores, electronics and appliances stores, sporting goods, hobby, musical instrument and bookstores as well as clothing and clothing accessories stores.

3. Wall Street Journal, 29 July 2022.

Outlook

Tailwinds Boosting Grocery & Necessity Retail Sector

- The tailwinds boosting strip center fundamentals including a lack of new supply, enhanced role of the store for delivery logistics, and consumers spending more time in the suburbs, still outweigh the impact of the ongoing deceleration of the economy¹
- In 2Q 2022, strip center sector occupancy continued to climb higher slightly ahead of expectations and leasing demand continues to be broad based with strong demand from in-line and anchor tenants¹
- U.S. store openings significantly outpacing store closings
 - For the period ended 30th June, there were 4,328 openings compared with 1,912 closures²

Strip Center Quarterly Leasing Volume⁴

Retail Shopping Center Transaction Volume (Sales)³

	Q2 2022		H1 2022
	Vol ($b)	YOY	Vol ($b)	YOY
Retail Total	22.6	46%	44.7	81%

Single Asset	18.5	38%	33.7	57%
Portfolio	4.2	101%	11.0	239%

- Despite inflationary increases, higher property-level operating expenses have been offset by higher reimbursements from tenants due to the triple net lease structure¹
- Portfolio and entity-level deals were an important part of the growth in deal volume for the quarter, with sales tied up in such megadeals climbing 101% y-o-y. Entity-level deals, in particular, have been rebounding in 2022. For 1H 2022, $4.2b in portfolio sales have closed⁵

Customer Rental Duration Lengthen in Self Storage Sector

- While demand for storage remains robust, occupancy and rental rate growth are anticipated to moderate in late 2022 into 2023¹
- The magnitude of move-in rate growth in 2022 has significantly surpassed full year estimates of 7-8%
 - Contemplate a slowdown in operating results in 2H 2022
 - A deceleration in revenue growth in 2H 2022 will likely be led by a slowdown in move-in rate growth, with the expectation of more normalized seasonality which will likely lead to a tough comp in the fourth quarter²
- Tenant duration has lengthened throughout Covid, with ~65% of customers having stayed more than a year (up from ~50%), which expands the pool of customers subject to Existing Customer Rent Increases (ECRIs)
 - Additionally, tenant churn has been subdued and move-in rates face stiffer comps in 2022 vs. 2021
 - ECRIs are expected to have an outsized impact on rate growth in 2022³
- Deal volume for the self storage sector totaled $6.5b in 1H 2022. Investment activity was down 2% y-o-y due to a pullback in megadeal activity. In 1H 2021, portfolio and entity-level deals accounted for more than half of total deal volume, but only represented 34% of volume in 1H 2022. Individual asset sales were up 48% y-o-y for the sector⁴

Strong Self-Storage Demand Drivers

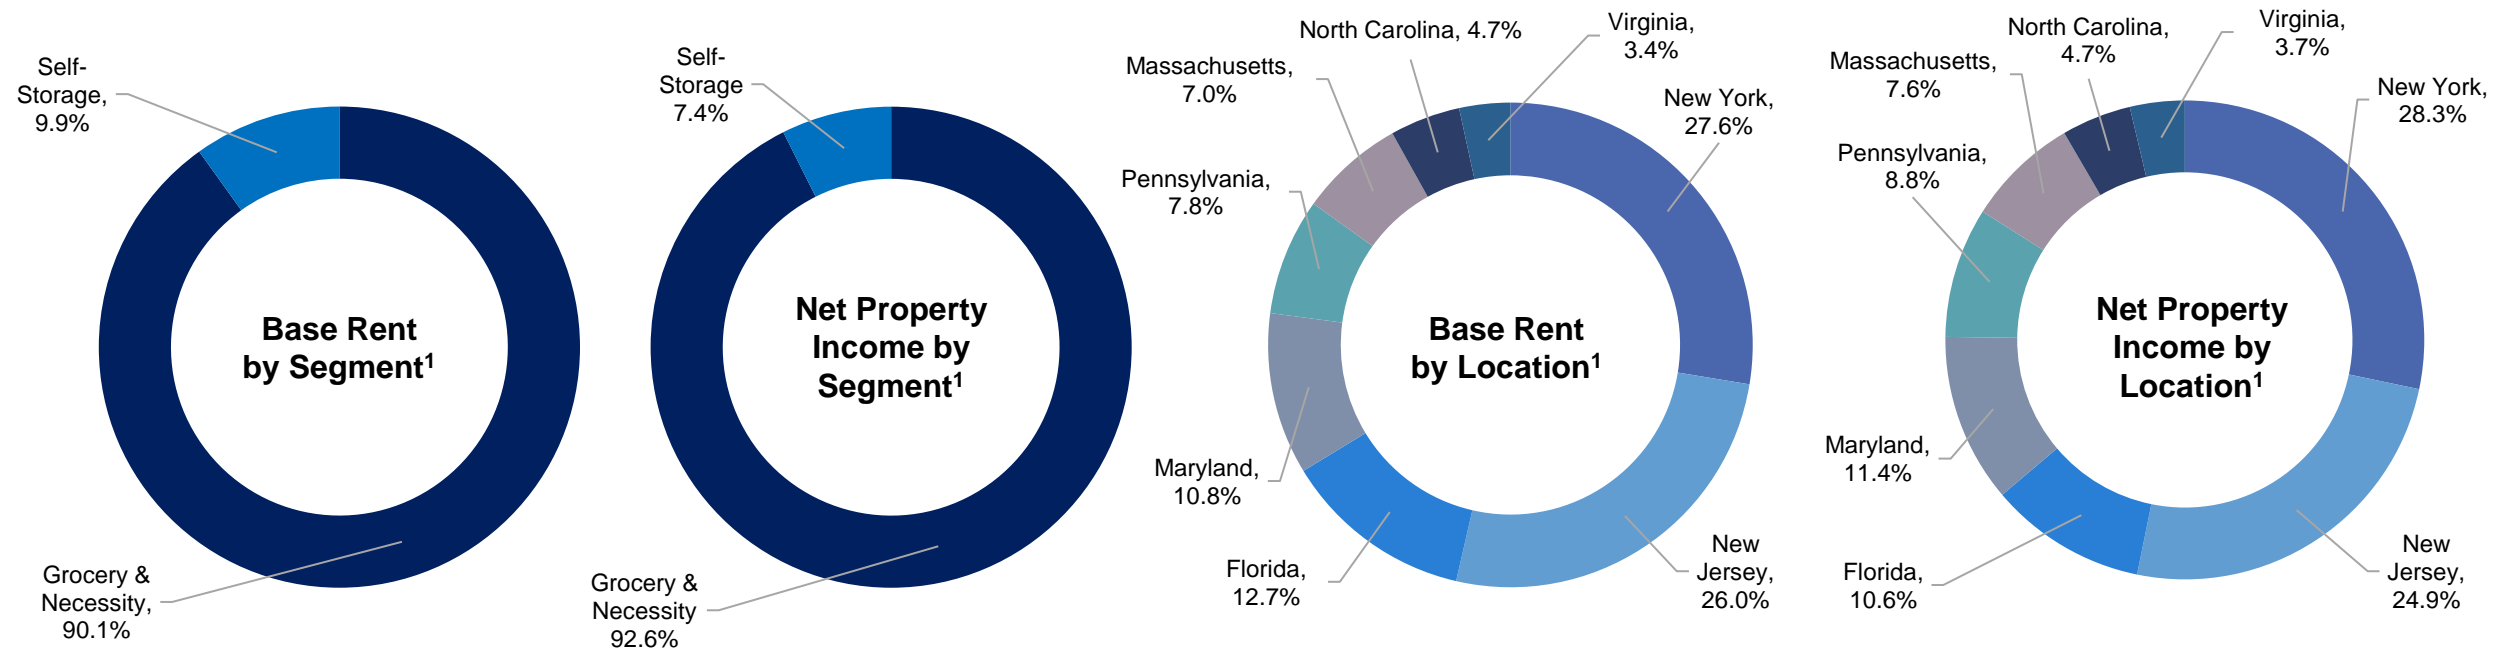

- In addition to 'life event' demand drivers (e.g., moving, divorce), the storage industry continues to benefit from Covid-related needs, including: 1) businesses storing inventory; 2) decluttering for home offices; and 3) storage of apartment furnishings for those who moved temporarily¹
- COVID-related demand materially increased storage utilization rates, and much of this demand is likely to become sticky consumer behavior²
- The surge in remote work caused homeowners to increase the amount of dedicated space for home offices and home gyms in their residences, driving massive demand for self-storage. Green Street forecasts that 70% of U.S. employees will work from home at least one day per week in the near future, a substantial increase from a 12% projection prior to the pandemic³
- Move-in rates have historically trailed in-place rates. However, strong demand, high occupancy levels, and limited new supply have caused overall move-in rates to surpass in-place rents¹
